Desire for power is a significant enduring issue because throughout history in many ways leaders have made crucial decisions about society, purely because they want to gain & maintain power. This is shown in an excerpt written by a Greek writer describing how Spartan boys were raised between 46-120 CE. In Greek culture, the Hitler Youth, a group of children taught indoctrination, or to think like Hitler. And the Red Guards, a group of children in during China's Cultural Revolution (1966-1976) ^{who} wear military uniforms & carried out the rules of their communist leader, Mao Zedong.

Plutarch

From 46-120 CE there was a Greek ^{Plutarch} writer who wrote about Greek life for young Spartan boys. In an excerpt he wrote from "Instituta Laconica by Plutarch" he stated how young boys had to learn to read & write for practical reasons, but all other learning was focused mainly on battles, strength, & victory. How they didn't bathe, went shirtless, & only received one garment a year & how they built their own beds, they went to their elders with everything, & faced punishment for lying. They stole food because they weren't provided much. This was all because the Spartans wanted to train their youth to fight & survive with little to nothing to make them the strongest warriors. So if they were threatened they would have the means to keep their power.

In the 1930's & 1940's Adolf Hitler led the Nazis in a movement to rid all Jews in Germany. One of the ways he did this was through indoctrination, teaching a group of people to learn & accept certain ideas & beliefs. He created the Hitler Youth Group for young boys to learn to hate Germany's enemies & become devoted Nazis. They also taught young girls how to prepare to become housewives & mothers. By gaining control of the youth Hitler secured his power because, your new generations would think like him carrying out his beliefs for time to come. "United States Holocaust Memorial Museum, "Hitler Youth"

In 1949 when China was taken over by a Communist Party, led by Mao Zedong. They were fresh out of a civil war & their leader declared a cultural revolution from (1966-1976). In order to carry out the changes Mao desired he looked upon the youth. Instead of a usual education, teens became Red Guards. Patriots who dressed in military attire to carry out Mao's orders. They destroyed ideas of old Chinese culture, knowledge, ideas, & habits through destruction & violence. Mao Zedong was able to keep his power & enforce his rule because he took control over China's youth allowing him to have a young following to keep his ideas & power alive. "China's Cultural Revolution Explained"

Throughout history desire for power has caused leaders to take control of their youth in hopes their legacy, ideas, & power will be long lasting. Through training Young Spartan Boys, Hitler's Youth, & the Red Guards. We see how much young people are influenced by the people they look up to & their surroundings. But we also see how in order to maintain & gain power leaders have taken advantage of that. We still see it today with rulers & politicians reaching out to youth through social media encouraging them to support & back their ideas, with a platform so familiar to them. It is a tactic that has been used & will continue to be used in history & present day to gain & maintain power.

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every entry should be supported by a valid receipt or invoice. This ensures transparency and allows for easy verification of the data.

In the second section, the author outlines the various methods used to collect and analyze the data. This includes both primary and secondary data collection techniques. The primary data was gathered through direct observation and interviews, while secondary data was obtained from existing reports and databases.

The analysis phase involved using statistical software to identify trends and correlations within the data. The results show a clear upward trend in the number of transactions over the period studied. This is attributed to several factors, including increased market activity and improved infrastructure.

Finally, the document concludes with a series of recommendations for future research and implementation. It suggests that further studies should focus on the long-term sustainability of the current trends and the impact of external factors on the data.
